No Sect in Henven.

Talking of sects till late one eve, Of the various doctrines the saints believe, That night I stood in a troubled dream,

By the side of a darkly flowing stream. And a " Untirchipao" down to the river came : when I heard a strange voice call his name, " Good father, stop ; when you cross this tide, You must leave your robes on the other side." But the aged father did not mind,

And his long robe floated out behind, As down to the stream his way he took, His pale hands clasping a gilt edged book. "I'm bound for heaven, and when I'm there, I shall want my book of Common Prayer;

And though I put on a starry crown, I should feel quite lost without my gown. Then he fixed his eye on the shining track, But his gown was heavy and held him back, And the poor old father tried in vain A single step in the flood to gain.

I saw him again on the other side, But his silk gown floated on the tide ; And no one asked in that blissful spot, Whether he belonged to " the Church" or not. Then down to the river a Quaker strayed,

His dress of a sober hue was made; " My coat and hat must be all of gray, I cannot go any other way." Then he buttoned his coat straight up to his chin,

And staidly, solemnly, waded in, And his broad-brimmed hat he pulled down tight Over his forehead, so cold and white. But a strong wind carried away his hat;

A moment he silently sighed over that, And then as he gazed to the farther shore, The coat slipped off and was seen no more. As he entered heaven, his suit of gray

Went quietly sailing-away-away, And none of the angels questioned him About the width of his beaver's brim. Next came Dr. Watts with a bundle of Psalms

Tied nicely up in his aged arms, And hymns as many, a very wise thing, That the people in heaven, "all round," might sing. But I thought that he heaved an anxious sigh,

As he saw that the river ran broad and high, And looked rather surprised as one by one, The Psaims and Hymns in the wave went down. And after him with his MSS., Came Wesley, the pattern of godliness,

But he cried, " Dear me, what shall I do? The water has sonked them through and through." And there on the river, far and wide, Away they went down the swollen tide, And the saint estonished, passed through alone,

Without his manuscripts, up to the throne. Then, gravely walking, two saints by name Down to the stream together came, But as they stopped at the river's brink,

I saw one saint from the other shrink. "Sprinkled or plunged-may I ask you, friend, How you attained to life's great end ?"

" Thus, with a few drops on my brow," "But I have been dipped, as you'll see me now. " And I really think it will hardly do, As I'm close communion,' to cross with you, You're bound, I know, to the realms of bliss,

But you must go that way, and I'll go this." Then straightway plunging with all his might, Away to the left-his friend at the right-

Apart they went from this world of sin, But at last together they entered in. And now when the river was rolling on, A Presbyterian church went down ;

Of women there seemed an innumerable throng, But the men I could count as they passed along. And concerning the road, they could never agree, The old or the new way, which it could be,

Nor ever a moment paused to think That both would lead to the river's brink. And a sound of murmuring, long and loud, Came ever up from the moving crowd, "You're in the old way, and I'm in the new, That is the false, and this the true,"-Or, "I'm in the old way, and you're in the new, That is the false, and this is the true."

I watched them long in my curious dream, Till they stood by the borders of the stream, Then, just as I thought the two ways met. But all the brethren were talking yet, And would talk on, till the heaving tide Carried them over, side by side ; Side by side, for the way was one, The toilsome journey of life was done, And priest and Quaker, and all who died, Came out alike on the other side. No forms, or crosses, or books had they, No gowns of silk, or suits of gray, No creeds to guide them, or MSS., For all had put on Christ's righteousness,

VARIETY.

There is quite as much in knowing when, as in knowing how to speak.

Praise is sometimes as hurtful as censure. It is as bad to be blown into the air as to be cast into a pit. Wordsworth thought disparagingly of Shakesseare, and said in a letter that he could write like lim if he had a mind to. "That's it," replied lamb; "he could, if he had a mind to."

"I think," said an old toper, commenting upon the habits of a young man, who was fast making a beast of himself, "when a man reaches a certain Pint in drinkin', he ort to stop." "Well, I think," SHERMAN PECK, H. A. P. CARTER, said old Beeswax, drily, "he ought to stop before he reaches a pint."

FAULT FINDING .- It was my custom in my youth (says a celebrated Persian writer) to rise from my sleep to watch, pray and read the Koran. One hight at I was thus engaged, my father, a man of practical virtue, awoke. "Behold," said I to him, thy other children are lost in irreligious slumbers, while I alone wake to praise God." "Son of my soul," said he, "it is better to sleep than to wake and remark the faults of thy brethren."

POVERTY.-Bulwer says that poverty is only an idea, in nine cases out of ten. Some men with ten thousand dollars a year suffer more for want of means than others with three hundred. The reason is, the richer man has artificial wants. His income is ten thousand dollars, and by habit he spends twelve or fifteen thousand, and he suffers enough from being dunned for unpaid debts to kill a sensitive man. A man who earns a dollar a day and does not run in debt, is the happiest of the two. Very few people who have never been rich will believe this, but it is true as God's word. There are people, of course, who are wealthy, and enjoy their wealth, but there are thousands upon thousands, with princely incomes, who never know a moment's peace, because they live above their means. There is really more happiness in the world among working people than among those who are called rich.
